Freud's Uncanny - das Unheimliche

Something once familiar, then repressed, that now returns. (Freud, 2003 [1919]: 152, 154)

(examples include: when boundaries between reality and fantasy are blurred; being buried alive (return to the womb); severed limbs (castration complex); raising of the dead.

Most works of mountain literature are written by men, and most of them focus on the goal of the summit. Nan Shepherd's aimless, sensual exploration of the Cairngorms is bracingly different.

Robert Macfarlane, 2008

PhD question: Are Nan Shepherd's methodologies in nature-writing applicable to my contemporary art practice?
Humanity and non-humanity have always performed an intricate dance with each other. There was never a time when human agency was anything other than an interwoven network of humanity and non-humanity; today this mingling has become harder to ignore.

It seems to me then that I could never go back; my fear unmans me, horror is in my mouth.
(Shepherd 1977: 6)

Something moves between me and it. Place and a mind may interpenetrate till the nature of both is altered.
