
Downloaded from: http://insight.cumbria.ac.uk/id/eprint/4710/

Usage of any items from the University of Cumbria’s institutional repository ‘Insight’ must conform to the following fair usage guidelines.

Any item and its associated metadata held in the University of Cumbria’s institutional repository Insight (unless stated otherwise on the metadata record) may be copied, displayed or performed, and stored in line with the JISC fair dealing guidelines (available here) for educational and not-for-profit activities provided that

• the authors, title and full bibliographic details of the item are cited clearly when any part of the work is referred to verbally or in the written form

• a hyperlink/URL to the original Insight record of that item is included in any citations of the work

• the content is not changed in any way

• all files required for usage of the item are kept together with the main item file.

You may not

• sell any part of an item

• refer to any part of an item without citation

• amend any item or contextualise it in a way that will impugn the creator’s reputation

• remove or alter the copyright statement on an item.

The full policy can be found here. Alternatively contact the University of Cumbria Repository Editor by emailing insight@cumbria.ac.uk.
Transformative Learning in practice: a students perspective.

Peter Robinson – Coach and Professional Trainer

Ian Corrie – University of Cumbria
Background

This presentation will tell the story of the student and their supervisors journey through the dissertation module and the learning as observed from both the supervisor and the students perspective.
Background

“Transformative Learning approach can be a powerful experience that shifts their meaning perspective and can be epochal, a sudden dramatic reorientation insight, or incremental, involving a progressive series of transformations”, Mezirow (2000).

The Transformative Learning pedagogical approach we have applied to the MSc is to take students through a number of reflective experiences including the use of artefacts to develop a deeper learning experience on this coaching MSc.

This promotes what Dirkx (1997) refers to as 'learning through soul' or the 'soul work' involved in Transformative Learning.
Threshold concepts

Liminality – Van Gennep (1960).

MSc Coaching and Mentoring

The philosophy of the MSc was designed around the contemporary coaching and Transformative Learning literature combined with the experience that Ron and I had in working with Transformative Learning in Leadership and Coaching environments within the NHS, Police, Military and private sector.

The MSc was informed by Ron’s Pro fDoc and the ProfDoc that I am currently finishing, and based on the in depth understanding that we had developed into the work of Jack Mezirow, John Dirkx and Victoria Marsick.

The MSc is aimed at those professionals wanting to enter Coaching or those in positions where this would be validation of existing knowledge skills and experience.
MSc – Progression of modules

Coaching and Mentoring Theory → Coaching and Mentoring Supervision → Transformative Reflective Practice → Preparing for Professional Practice → Business Planning & Development

Research Methods → Dissertation
Cohort 1 – Sept 2017

The first cohort attracted 14 students from diverse backgrounds including:

- Professional Trainers
- Company Directors
- Educators
- A senior administrator
- NGO workers
- British Army
- A Learning Technologist
- NHS Manager
- Professional coaches
The Students Journey

- Disorienting dilemmas
- Critical assessment & examination of assumptions
- Exploration of options & plans
- Acquisition of new knowledge & implementation of plans
Using coaching with students
The student experience
The student experience
The student experience
The student experience
Any questions

Thank you!!
Bibliography

Reflection – Moon (1999)